

What our users think

“It is very useful to read printed copies of EENET’s Enabling Education Review. We see what’s happening in other countries. Teachers like to see how their peers in other countries find solutions to their problems.”

R. Tjizu, Education Officer, Namibia.

“We were very pleased and delighted to have such a wonderful training on inclusive education. It was an encouragement to us and we are using the skills and methods you taught us so that all learners in our classes are included.”

C. Chiwalo, Teacher, Malawi.

“I found EENET’s materials extremely useful for my job. It is the first time I’ve ever received any reading material that is useful to mainstream marginalised groups of people in education.” M.P. Hadkhale, Programme Co-ordinator, Nepal.

What do you think?

We constantly strive to improve our information, networking and consultancy activities, and value any feedback or ideas you wish to share with us.

Who are we?

EENET is an information network.
We also offer consultancy services.

Our free network is open to everyone, including: teachers, parents, students, non-governmental organisations, policy-makers, trainers, and government officials.

We focus on countries that have limited access to information and resources.

We encourage conversations and critical reflection on the issue of quality, inclusive, enabling education.

We are run by a global team of volunteers and consultants, and have a group of guiding members from 15 countries. Our network users come from more than 200 countries.

Visit us online to sign up for regular updates and to order materials, or send us a letter or email.

Contact details

Enabling Education Network - EENET
PO Box 422,
Hyde,
SK14 9DT, UK

Tel/SMS: +44 (0)7929 326 564

Email: info@eenet.org.uk

Website: www.eenet.org.uk

Online shop: <http://shop.eenet.org.uk>

<http://bit.ly/EENET-FB>

@GlobalEENET

Photos by (clockwise from top left): Jannick Beyer, Bhutan; Donna Lene, Samoa; Ian Kaplan, UK; Ian Kaplan, Indonesia; Ezilly Mwaanga, Zambia

Enabling Education Network

Promoting the inclusion of marginalised groups in education worldwide

EENET is an information-sharing network, open to all

CIC no. 07023142

www.eenet.org.uk

What does EENET do?

All our work is guided by our theory of change, and our commitment to collaborate, exchange and influence.

Exchange

We want more education stakeholders to benefit from creating, accessing and sharing relevant resources that nurture critical thinking and innovation around inclusive education.

Website – www.eenet.org.uk
Contains over 800 articles, reports, posters and video resources from more than 100 countries.

Enabling Education Review

Our annual publication features easy-to-read short articles from education practitioners and stakeholders.

Hard copy distribution

We still prioritise distribution of inclusive education materials in printed format, for readers who are not able to access the internet.

EENET's overall desired change

More girls, boys, women and men actively participate in quality inclusive education and learning opportunities throughout their lives.

Collaborate

We want more education stakeholders to collaboratively design, implement, reflect on and document inclusive education initiatives.

Consultancy services

Consultants from many different countries help government and non-government clients with research, evaluations, training programmes, technical advice and advocacy campaigns.

Influence

We want more education stakeholders to advocate effectively for relevant policy, programme and/or practice changes towards quality inclusive education.